Miscellaneous. UNHAPPINESS IN FAMILIES.

The trivial causes that annually bring so many parties before our Legislature for the purpose the being legally and forever separated, ought to in culcate a few healthy practical instructions.

They cannot fail to suggest to observant persons the characteristic fact that almost all serious difficulties between married parties grow out of the most insignificant beginning, that might have been, and ought to have been, swept out of exist-ence at the outset.

While much comes to light in the investigation of the cases of applicants for divorce that is eminently amusing, not to say ridiculous, we think smalogous, and which it becomes, and much it that the commencement of all the difficulties will in most instances be found to be of like characteristic metallic m in most instances be found to se of like characters. A very little nervous exchement accompanied with a few tears, and alterwards a resolution to be a little spunky, just to rowe the depth of the grief—a trifling neglect and alterwards in the process of events a growing and decided aversion—these, and the like of these, is a majority of the causes brought out to public natice, are the kind and amount of feeling and treatment that soon effect a confirmed alienation and final separation of parties, who with ordinary pains could have gone "down life's hill together" with unimpaired to expect to find the other perfect. The looks for traits in his wife which he has character of her bushand which is mor consistent with human moore. Much Lot of Ready-made Clothing, which cannot, nor shall not, be beat this side of the eastern cities. He thinks it unnecessary to enumerate prices, all he would ask is a call, as the prices are incredibly low, even past human credulity without an examination. Call soon, or you may lose a bargain.

He would also gay, if first-rate workmen and an earnest desire to serve and accommodate all who may fee; disposed to encourage him in the Tailoring Business, is any inducement for a continuation of public patronage, he may rest satisfied of a full share of the public favor.

Lames Clothing, and the disappointment met with found may fee it disposed to encourage him in the patronage, he may rest satisfied of a full share of the public favor.

of themselves on dry up like thin grass before the genial warmth of natural affection, if they were not studiously, but in a most mistaken manner, paraded before the attention of others. We know that a bruised spirit needs sympathy and comso-Attention, Heaumonda!

I WOULD most respectfully inform my friends and the public generally that I have this day received from the East the largest and best assortment of materials that I have ever before of the commercial of materials that I have ever before of the commercial of materials that I have ever before of the could never diminish! Those who create they could never diminish! and report scandal for their own gratificationbusy bodies and fast talkers who insinuate them, selves where they should never be allowed to do
-these are the ones who in too many instances, help on the misunderstanding and trifling disatfection between married parties, and their filumph is only complete when the rupture has become notorious and final. If such persons could have less to do with the family nature of others, there is but little doubt ahart home matters would take much better care of themselves. The married state is by incomeans a state of perfect happiness; We must enter upon iteres period, aspidest. The seriod bear with one solved and expecting to have to bear with one hother's infrigites. We are but mortal, and they who generally expect, and demand the near-set approach to period to in others will generally be found to have a sety indefinite idea of the set of t the term themselves. The pearest we may go towards real happiness in the married and social state is by practicing a system of mutual not pearance and concession. It more of this were practiced, and broading over wrongs and neglects, to often imaginary, were not included in, we should hear far less of troublesome divorce cases, and see much more of imalloyed enjoyment in faintilies.—Hartford Courant, I is a tronger of the second courant of the se bis it; iCHURCH BELLS

THE INTERIOR OF THE BARTH.

A fact of great interest, says Professor Silli-man, has been proved by the borings for artesian wells in the suburbs of Paris, namely, that as we go towards the centre of the earth, the temperature increases at the rate of about one degree for that they are caused by the combustion of images and beds, is perfectly puerile, and is entirely abandoned. All the coal in the world would never alterd fuel enough, for a single capital exhibition of Vesuvius.
